 Non-Sufficient Funds (NSF) Fees

Your account may be charged an NSF fee (either a Returned ACH (NSF) or a Returned Check (NSF)) when the Credit Union returns or rejects transactions against your account that would exceed your available balance. Importantly, a transaction that you have authorized (for example, a check or an ACH debit) may be presented or submitted to the Credit Union multiple times and you could be charged multiple NSF fees if the Credit Union returns or rejects the transaction multiple times.

Check Example. If you wrote a check to a merchant (or other third party) who submitted the check to the Credit Union for payment and we returned the check, you would be charged an NSF fee. If the merchant presented the check for payment again (or converted the check into an ACH and submitted the item for payment), the Credit Union would make an additional determination of whether the available balance was sufficient. If not, you would be charged an NSF fee. This means you could be charged multiple NSF fees due to the check (and, possibly, the electronically converted check) being presented and returned multiple times.

ACH Example. If you authorize a merchant (or other third party) to electronically debit your account, such as an ACH debit, the merchant submits the electronic debit to the Credit Union for payment. If the transaction exceeds your available balance, the debit will be rejected and you will be charged an NSF fee. The merchant may re-submit the electronic debit to the Credit Union for payment. If this occurs, the Credit Union would make an additional determination of whether the available balance was sufficient and, if not, you would be charged an NSF fee for this additional rejected transaction.

Note: The Credit Union does not determine whether or when an item or transaction is presented for payment. Rather, the Credit Union determines whether or not the available balance is sufficient to pay a presented or submitted item or transaction.
